FARM STRIKE IS CALLED FOR MAY 15 BY LEADERS

A Challenge Is Issued At Des Moines Meeting Last Eve

BULLETIN
Des Moines, May 5—(AP)—Farmers of the nation will strike on May 13 unless their legislative demands on Congress are met, Milo Reno, president of the National Farm Holiday Association, declared today.

The only action which will prevent the strike will be the passage by Congress between now and May 13 of the measures for agricultural relief which the association has demanded, he declared.

Des Moines, Iowa, May 5—(AP)—The National Farmers' Holiday Association threw down this challenge to the nation today:

Either the demands of agriculture for farm relief will be granted or the products of the farm will be withheld from the American dinner table beginning May 13 until they are. A guarantee of production costs is sought.

It was the second time in less than a year that plans for a nation-wide farm holiday were made. Repeating their action of a year ago, the national convention of the association yesterday passed a resolution calling for the strike for May 13 and instructing its executive committee to prepare plans and methods by which the embargo on marketing of foodstuffs would be carried out.

Minority Beaten
The delegates to the convention in so voting shouted down the arguments of a minority group which sought to defer an open declaration until Congress has taken action on the farm relief bill.

The latter stated their hope for inclusion in the bill of a clause guaranteeing farmers the cost of production for their crops.

Earlier in the day the convention voted to withhold their decision until a vote had been taken in Congress on the cost of production guarantee.

The executive committee met last night at the Holiday Association's national office here, but the members decided to discuss contemplated action between now and the date set for the strike to begin.

RACKETEERING CHARGED
Des Moines, May 5—(AP)—Outright "racketeering" methods were used to recruit the membership of the Farm Holiday Association in Iowa, Attorney General Edward L. O'Connor charged today.

FOUR OFFICIALS OF ILL. MINERS AFTER WEAPONS

Trip To Davenport For "Duck Hunting" Material Revealed

Davenport, Ia., May 5—(AP)—Four men, claimed by police to be representatives of Illinois coal mining companies, were released today after being questioned, police said, about inquiries they had made here and in Rock Island for guns, silencers, and ammunition.

The men gave their names as John Schneider, William McAuley, William Crompton and Hugh Talley.

Police said two of the men had asked about revolvers at a pawnshop in Rock Island and were directed to Davenport.

Crompton and Talley were picked up as they sat in a parked sedan here late yesterday. A search of the car, police said, revealed three loaded revolvers, some ammunition and a bottle of liquor.

Authorities said today they had no charges upon which to hold the men.

MINER'S OFFICIALS

Springfield, Ill., May 5—(AP)—The four Springfield men held in police custody at Davenport, Iowa, last night were affiliated with the Progressive Miners of America, a coal miners' union which for nearly a year has engaged in a bitter dispute with members of the rival United Mine Workers of America.

"They must have been purchasing the firearms to go duck hunting," said Claude Peary of Gillespie, Progressive president, when notified of the arrests last night.

William McAuley is secretary of the Progressive Union's Relief Commission here. Hugh Talley is Auditor of the commission. John Schneider, one of the others held overnight at Davenport, is president of a Springfield local union.

More than a dozen persons have been killed in mine outbreaks during recent months in central and southern Illinois.

EMIL SCHERTNER FOLLOWED WIFE IN DEATH TODAY

His Passing Followed That Of Helpmeet After 5 Weeks

Emil E. Schertner passed away this morning at 6:45 at a hospital at Madison, Wis., where he has been a patient for the past ten days suffering with complications. His wife, Sarah M. Schertner, preceded him in death just five weeks ago today. Shortly after her death he went to Madison to visit with friends in that vicinity and was taken ill. His condition grew worse, necessitating his removal to a hospital, where pneumonia developed which resulted in his passing. The funeral arrangements had not been completed today pending the return of the body to Dixon and will be announced tomorrow.

Mr. Schertner was born in Havre de Grace, France, February 1, 1858 and had attained the age of 75 years, three months and four days. His parents were natives of Germany and he came with them when a small boy to the United States where they settled near Madison, Wis. His parents passed away when he was twelve years of age and he was taken into the family of Ella Wheeler Wilcox, famous poetess, and during his minority resided with the Wheeler family near Madison.

During his young manhood he came to Dixon and for more than 45 years was a valued employee of the Borden Company at the condensation here. He was of a retiring disposition but possessed a host of friends. He is survived by two daughters, Mrs. Lucille Poole and Mrs. Clytie Ridge; and one son, Harold Schertner, all of this city. Three grandchildren also survive, with a host of more distant relatives and friends.

IOWA MILITIA'S COMMANDER HAS IGNORED THREAT

Invaded Cherokee Co. And Arrested Two Riot Suspects

Le Mars, Iowa, May 5—(AP)—The militia has struck again in its effort to bring punishment to Iowa's rioting farmers.

Defying a threat from County Attorney James Smith to arrest Guardsmen if they entered his county to make arrests, the militia men pushed into Cherokee yesterday and apprehended two more suspects—Walter Dunn and Emil Knabe. They are suspected of a part in the recent assault on District Judge C. C. Bradley.

Following the invasion, County Attorney Smith gave the militia a tongue lashing, predicting a grand jury investigation if the prisoners were "taken against their will." The arrests were made on orders of Col. Glenn C. Haynes, commanding officer of the National Guardsmen, who took over affairs following the recent disturbances growing out of the efforts of farmers to prevent mortgage foreclosures. He did not appear to be concerned over by Attorney Smith's statement.

"You may say that I smiled when informed of the statement," he declared, adding that at least one more arrest would be made in Cherokee county.

The arrests brought the total number of prisoners in the two districts under martial law to 148, 86 held here and 62 at Denison.

The military courts continued their investigation of the mauling of the judge and the foreclosure sale riot at Denison, questioning prisoners and gathering evidence to be used in civil trials later.

East St. Louis, Ill., May 5—(AP)—Frank Jackel, of East St. Louis, 65-year-old engineer for the Mobile & Ohio Railroad died suddenly today in the cab of his locomotive after the train, a combination passenger and freight, had stopped at Tammis, Ill., 20 miles north of Cairo.

William Fay, fireman, took Jackel's place at the throttle and brought the train to St. Louis an hour and 40 minutes late.

Electricity Tax May Be Forced On Companies; Senate Committee To Recommend Change In Statute

Washington, May 5—(AP)—A Senate Finance subcommittee today approved, with some revision, the House tax bill provision transferring the 3 per cent electricity tax from the consumer to the producer.

The group, which will report its recommendations to the full committee Monday, would make the tax change effective November 1 instead of July 1 to allow the power companies to lay their cases before state utility commissions in event they feel increased consumer rates were necessary to absorb the tax.

TAX PAYMENTS IN COUNTY ARE SATISFACTORY

Co. Treasurer Sterling D. Schrock Pleased With Response

Despite conditions generally throughout the county, the annual collection of taxes is progressing very satisfactorily in Lee County, according to County Treasurer Sterling D. Schrock. While the amount of taxes to be collected is lower than last year, at the close of business Wednesday, the records of the County Treasurer's office indicated the payment of approximately 36 per cent of the total amount of taxes to be collected, the amount being $401,873.30. On the same date last year the collections represented 52 per cent, or $685,611.11. The figures, according to the County Treasurer, are very encouraging in view of limited banking facilities the past year and represent only about a 16 per cent reduction, which includes the reduction of the total amount to be collected.

Lee County, it is pointed out, is more fortunate than many other counties because of the fact that no county tax anticipation warrants are to be paid by the Treasurer. At present Treasurer Schrock anticipates making his first settlement with the county taxing bodies about May 10.

Extension Welcome
Announcement was made yesterday of the passage of a new law which extends the date of penalty in the collection of the county taxes.

At the special organization meeting of the Board of Supervisors on April 17, Mr. Schrock appeared before the board and asked the cooperation of that body in permitting him to extend the penalty date from May 1 to June 1, for the benefit of the taxpaying public of Lee County. After explaining the situation, the board voted unanimously to support the County Treasurer in this extension which action has since become a state law. The action at that time was taken by Treasurer Schrock because of the general banking conditions throughout the county.

Start Delayed

Last year the collection of taxes started on March 7, when eleven banks were operating in the county. This year the collection did not begin until March 30, and on that date but one bank in the county was open unrestricted. Since that time four other banks have been opened without restrictions, four are open under conservatorships, one is still closed and the Harmon bank paid out its deposits in full and closed.

"Taxpayers of Lee county are making an earnest effort to pay their taxes as quickly as possible despite the handicaps that confront them this year," Mr. Schrock stated today, "and we are very proud of the record of this office this spring which is very encouraging and the figures are much better than some of the other counties of this section of the state, which have been reported. The people are making an honest effort to pay their taxes as soon as the funds are available."

BANK-WAIVERS BILL INVALID KERNER HOLDS

Atty. General Tells Horner Law Is Unconstitutional

Springfield, Ill., May 5—(AP)—Attorney General Otto Kerner today advised Governor Horner that the bill to permit downstate banks to reopen on waivers of 75 per cent of the unsecured deposits is unconstitutional.

Sponsored by the House Banking committee, the bill was rushed through the legislature in an effort to aid the resumption of business by unopened state banks.

The Attorney General held that it gave an unwarranted delegation of legislative power in authorizing downstate Circuit Judges to order banks reopened if waivers are obtained on 75 per cent of the deposits, the waivers to be binding on all other unsecured claims.

The bill, Horner was told, vests in the judges an arbitrary power to determine questions of public policy in that minority creditors would be forced to agree to a change in their contractual relationship with the banks.

A veto is expected, although the Governor may hold hearings before he reaches a decision.

House To Finish Work By June 1st.

Washington, May 5—(AP)—Speaker Rainey said at his press conference today that the "House will complete the President's emergency program and be ready for adjournment of the special session June 1."

"The initial bond issue for the public works program will be $500,000,000," Rainey said.

Dixon State Officer Witness In Trial Of Alleged Kidnapers

Hal Roberts Tells Of Arresting Three Of Defendants

Peoria, Ill., May 5—(AP)—A state motorcycle policeman was called to the witness stand in Federal court here today to establish the identity of the defendants on trial as the kidnapers of Fred DeFillippi, Spring Valley malt and sugar dealer.

Hal Roberts, Dixon, State Highway Officer, said the appearances of Frank Deibono, Mike Talacico and Eddie Moore when he arrested them on federal warrants tallied with their descriptions as given to him by DeFillippi two days following his return.

Identified Typewriter

Roberts also identified a typewriter seized in a raid on a Chicago hotel last February and the government indicated it would show that ransom and extortion notes were written on that machine in connection with the kidnappings of both DeFillippi and Adhemar Huughe, East Moline business man.

An attempt was made to elicit samples of Wesley E. Pritchett's handwriting taken by Ivan Kinney, Rock Island Post Office Inspector, during Pritchett's detention in jail, when Pritchett's attorney asserted that the Inspector had promised Pritchett his release if he would give samples of his hand writing.

Says Client Was Ill

He charged Pritchett was nervous and ill and the sample, which a hand writing expert is expected to identify as the same as is contained in one of the ransom notes was not a fair representation. The court denied the motion.

Victor Hieberg, East Moline, friend of the Huughe's testified that on October 6th, in response to a telephone call from Mrs. Huughe, he took her two valuable diamond rings to Peoria. The rings and $11,500 were paid for Huughe's release.

Leaping to his feet and crying, "You lie!" Deibono created a sensation late yesterday.

Was "Propositioner"
Deibono's outburst occurred just after Dan Zook had identified him from the witness stand as the man who had propositioned him about obtaining $15,000 ransom money for the release of Adhemar Huughe, East Moline, Ill., business man, kidnapped last October.

United States Marshal Charles W. Cushing quelled him and Zook, one of the defendants who turned government witness, was permitted to continue his testimony.

Other witnesses introduced by the government yesterday gave testimony intended to show that headquarters of Huughe's abductors were maintained in the "tri-cities" of Rock Island and Moline, Ill., and Davenport, Ia.

Principals Heavy Elopement Sought

Chicago, May 5—(AP)—It was a heavy elopement. The portly mayor of suburban Elwood Park, Charles P. Hochmer, 55, weighing more than 200 pounds and Mrs. George Hoffman, 45, president of the village Board of Education, almost as heavy, are sought on charges of abandonment and adultery, respectively, by the police on warrants sworn out by their deserted wife and husband. The mayor left five weeks ago, to the surprise of his wife of 25 years, and three children, after he had been defeated for reelection. Mrs. Hoffman, leaving five children, departed a week later, her incumbency as head of the schools about to end.

Only today did the deserted spouses decide to ask the arrest of the departed.

Wm. Lee Recalls A Narrow Escape

Will Lee, who for a number of years and until recently conducted a city trucking business, was the last to cross the Truesdell bridge before its collapse, May 4, 1932, he stated today. While then a boy attending high school, he made his home with the A. M. McKinney family on the north side. The Misses Ella and Emma McKinney were riding with him in a two-seated buggy and had left the north end of bridge, driving about ten feet, when it collapsed.

In the recollections of the tragedy published in The Telegraph yesterday, it was erroneously stated that the woman Edgar Patrick carried ashore, with the help of William Vann was Mrs. Vann. The woman was Mrs. Vann, mother of Mr. Patrick's helper, and she passed away soon after the disaster.

Federal Attorneys After Gang Heads

Chicago, May 5—(AP)—A special Assistant Attorney General has begun a major income tax drive against "public enemy No. 1" Murray Humphreys and a dozen other gangsters charged with obtaining millions of dollars through outlaw labor unions in Chicago, it was learned today.

The man directing the campaign along the same lines that sent Al Capone, Ralph Capone, Jack Guzik, and other notorious gangsters to prison is Leslie E. Salter, in charge of income tax cases for the government.

Investigations were reported to have been underway for weeks against Humphreys, a young man of good family who inherited Capone's throne, and Thomas Malloy, head of the turbulent Motion Picture Operators' Union.

William "Billy" Skidmore, bondsman and ally of the Capones, was another reported under investigation along with three police captains, a politician, and several others not before identified with gangdom.

Evidence of almost unbelievable connections between politics, police, and underworld was said to have been uncovered in the investigations.

MORE THAN 200 HURT IN THREE SMALL VILLAGES

Storm Hit West-Central Part Of State Before Dawn

Birmingham, Ala., May 5—(AP)—Twenty persons were killed and more than 200 injured by a tornado that swept three west-central Alabama communities shortly before dawn today.

Helena, a mining village of 700 population, bore the brunt of the storm, with 13 dead and nearly 100 injured.

The other communities struck were Demopolis, two killed; Centerville, two killed; Brent, three killed, and Adamsville, Union Grove, Coalmont and smaller communities where a number were injured.

The storms added to the toll of May storms in the south, which swept Louisiana, Arkansas and Mississippi. Two were killed in storms in the lower Mississippi. Two were killed in storms in the lower Mississippi valley yesterday one at Tallulah, La., and one near Pine Bluff, Ark.

Fear More Fatalities

Alabama's death list was expected to increase during the day as several of the injured were in such critical condition that physicians said they had only a slender chance to recover.

Relief facilities of Birmingham and nearby cities, which last year were taxed to capacity as disastrous tornadoes killed 300, were functioning within an hour after the word of the storms had been brought here.

The twister lasted but a moment and was gone, leaving dazed and terror-stricken residents without means of communication or light by which to seek relatives who were scattered in the confusion.

The body of one of the dead, Mrs. N. D. Thomas, wife of a deputy sheriff at Helena was found lodged high in the branches of a tree several yards from her home.

Ex-Gov. Cox Will Be Sent To London

Washington, May 5—(AP)—President Roosevelt's selection of delegates for the London world economic conference took more definite shape today with authoritative word that one member will be James M. Cox, former Governor of Ohio and 1920 Democratic presidential nominee.

His name had figured in speculation previously, but this was the most definite assertion in quarters that should know, that a decision had been reached. Cox has declined to comment and White House announcement is awaited.

It was also said that Ralph W. Morrison of San Antonio, Texas, financier and ranchman who was a heavy contributor to the Roosevelt-Garner campaign, will be asked to become one of the American representatives.

Wallace Doesn't Like Norris' Bill

Washington, May 5—(AP)—Secretary Wallace was represented today by Speaker Rainey as regarding the Norris-Simson amendment to the farm relief inflation bill as "unworkable."

"Secretary Wallace told me that the so-called Simpson amendment would mess things up so that he was afraid of it," Rainey told the newspapermen.

The House and Senate conferees are in disagreement over the amendment. Chairman Jones of the House Agriculture committee indicated he might ask the House today for instructions on the amendment inserted into the farm relief bill by the Senate. The conferees are in agreement on all other amendments.

The amendment is designed to assure the farmer a reasonable profit above the cost of production.

CLAIM KIDNAPER KNOWN

Boston, May 5—(AP)—The Boston American says in a copyright story that Margaret "Peggy" McMATH, who was kidnapped from her school in Harwichport, Tuesday, will be returned to her parents within 24 hours. The American says a person well known to the McMATH family was the "brains" of the plot.

"No gangster or racketeer had any part in it," the American says. State police and investigators, says the paper, are deliberately "laying low" until the child is returned, and Daniel Needham, Massachusetts Commissioner of Public Safety, in charge of the search, "has instructed his detectives to make no move towards prosecution until Peggy is home again."

Ransom Motive

The paper says a Harwichport man, well known to the McMATH family, instigated the plot, as an easy way to obtain a huge ransom from the wealthy grandparents in Detroit.

"He talked it over with at least one man from outside the town," the American says, "and together they perfected the plans." For three days before the actual kidnapping, the men rehearsed the plan "one man standing on the beach in South Harwich signalling across the bay to his confederate on Forest beach in Chatham."

The man in Chatham, the paper says, afterward acted as the "Ne-

New S.S. Washington's Maiden Trip on Epochal History Date

The little "Savannah" first steamship to venture across the Atlantic—above, the new U.S. Liner "Washington" on her maiden voyage.

Marine History and Modernity to Join Hands

THE maiden voyage of the new S.S. Washington, the largest and finest liner built in American shipyards, parallels a brilliant event in American maritime history, and recalls the epic scene of 114 years ago when the historic little Savannah left the American coast inaugurating the transatlantic achievement of steam as the first vessel to cross the Atlantic.

In May, 1819, the little vessel turned her prow to the Old World and within seven days later puffed into the harbor of Liverpool "to the amazement of all Europe," said the London Times of June 20th, having been chased off the Coast of Ireland by the Revenue Cruiser "Kite," which mistook her for a vessel on fire. From Liverpool Captain Rogers took his steamer to St. Petersburg, stopping at Stockholm and other Baltic ports, where great welcome receptions were accorded the hardy craft. From her Russian trip the Savannah arrived at Savannah, Georgia, on November 9th, proceeding to New York, where the historic engine was exhibited at the Crystal Palace Fair in 1856.

Luxury in Liners
The modern liner is the second unit of the home-built transatlantic fleet of the United States Lines, and is America's newest ship of perfection, bringing into the pulsating present a new splendid chapter of our Merchant Marine.

Over 500 American vessels are now the proud successors of the Savannah and carry the American flag to every corner of the globe. But the Washington and her sister ship the Manhattan are the latest luxury liners to compete with the finest creations of the world's shipyards, allowing America in steam to parallel its great period of clipper supremacy.

The area that the true picture of the activities has come to light," O'Connor said. He explained that previously farmers and businessmen had feared to talk to authorities about the situation.

The Secretary of State voiced faith that the enlightened nations would continue the agreement which he said they seemed to have that economic salvation for all countries depends on stabilizing currencies and reducing trade barriers, and that this can be done only by concerted action.

The Attorney General who returned from the counties in which disorders have occurred estimated that "not more than 25 per cent of the Holiday Association members in that area were 'willing members' and that the remainder were enlisted through threats and intimidation."

Farmers were forced to join and pay 75 cents for a membership card under the threat that their barns, straw stacks and other property might be burned, O'Connor said.

"It is only since the National Guard troops have been sent into the area that the true picture of the activities has come to light," O'Connor said. He explained that previously farmers and businessmen had feared to talk to authorities about the situation.

SPENDTHRIFT

A NY hrudy-gurdy
That can sing of spring,
Any sidewalk monkey
Dancing on a string,
Gets one coin or many
When you pass its way,
You buy vendor's roses
Seven times a day.

You are gay and foolish.
And I like you near,
You are fond of laughter,
So am I, my dear!
You could be a spendthrift
Running through my spring
For there wasn't autumn
For remembering.

PLAIDS AND CHECKS STRIKE JOYOUS NOTE FOR SPRING

Harmony Must Rule Their Use Or Silhouette Will Suffer

By ROSETTE HARGROVE
Paris—The tartan plaids and sophisticated checks in the new and subtle color combinations which are a feature of the spring collection strike a joyous note in these difficult times.

Despite their attractive quality of novelty, however, they need to be used with that unerring sense of harmony which breathes Paris, otherwise they will be found to do all sorts of odd things to the silhouette and just result in something dowdy instead of the chic of the very latest vintage.

Cotton check fashions the very charmingly youthful and short-sleeved blouse and lines the jacket or coat of the informal type of ensemble or suit. It is also used for intricate yoke and sleeves, without any apparent seams or for generous and jaunty bow ties. The latter should especially be reserved for the young and fresh complexion as they will be found devastating aging to the more mature type of woman.

Tartans in Wool
For the same reason, the checked evening dress shown by Vera Borea will appeal to a great number of women because of its youthful appeal, but it is a style which should be most carefully studied before attempt is made to wear it.

Tartans reappear on the fashion scene in the guise of wool as well as silk. In wool, it is used more generally to finish off a sports ensemble. In silk, it fashions many of the most charming afternoon dresses, and when worn with a dark coat, constitutes what Paris considers an elegant ensemble.

In chiffon, tartans offer a welcome change to the stereotypical floral design and in the soft pastel colors favored for evening wear they are both becoming and attractive.

Sashes Supply Contrast
Cire ribbon sashes in a color two or three shades darker than that predominating in the plaid supply the necessary contrast, and often outline the decorative harness extending to the hem in a train effect.

Tartan washing silks are admirable for all-around frocks and

Checks and plaids are socially prominent, both for daytime or night. Worth makes an afternoon dress (left) of black and white printed crepe de chine, with graduated flaring cuffs attached to very short sleeves. Vera Borea makes a black suit (center) with just a skeleton jacket, worn over a bright plaid taffeta blouse. Vera Borea makes a white checked crepe silk for the evening gown (right), with its unusual decolletage and little red packet of crepe.

look extremely smart, especially when completed by triple-banded sleeves in white organdy on an indistinct black and white plaid as shown by Worth. An important point to bear in mind when contemplating a tartan frock is that there absolutely must be a re-creating note at the neck or sleeves and that it has to be used diagonally to avoid an impression of dumptiness.

Brown and white, blue and white, red and white and black and white are the smart checks in the cotton family. In the silks sometimes a third color is introduced, but even the tartans never show more than three.

Accessories Are Smart
For women who perhaps will hesitate before a tartan element in their spring wardrobe, there are a number of consolation prizes in the form of accessories which will supply the 1933 touch effectively.

Many of the leading modistes are showing straw hats with ribbon lined with check or tartan ribbon and completed by a little scarf to match.

Jane Blanchot shows a model in black plaid with a tartan ruching at the back which Paris called in the old days a "cache-peigne" and which rests directly on the hair.

The accompanying scarf forms a similar ruch which hugs the neck and is finished off by a bow tie.

Touches of tartan can also be supplied by bags, with belts and gloves with the lining of the gauntlet to match. For informal wear these are unquestionably smart especially if they complement a navy blue, black or grey ensemble.

on which friends and neighbors of a hospital can get better acquainted with it, and better understand why there are 7,000 hospitals in the United States and Canada working 24 hours a day and every day in the year.

Many hospitals exhibit some special feature of their work and all hospitals keep open house and are glad to welcome visitors.

The hospital today is a necessity, and is becoming more necessary to every community every day. Medical science, which has made such strides could not advance without the research made possible by hospitals, nor would there be trained nurses nor highly skilled physicians without experience in hospital work.

But still more important to the individual is the fact that life is so organized today that the kindly help of a neighbor in time of illness, so common only a few years ago, is today almost past, and even the rich find it increasingly difficult to organize their households to care for serious illness. Then, too, even the wealthiest home cannot provide the facilities which are at hand in a modern hospital. As a result, persons of every financial status are more and more turning to the hospitals for care and treatment.

Just as surely as you are interested in your own life and health, you will some day be interested in some hospital. "Why not now?" Visit the hospital of your choice and get acquainted. Many of us will never have the money which will enable us to become contributors, but we can all become rosters and it always adds to one's happiness and enthusiasm to be on the roster's stand.

The first hospital in the American colonies was founded in 1751—177 years ago. This marked a great advance in the treatment of the sick and insane. The doctors of that day were eminent men and made important discoveries, but how crude does their practice seem when compared with the scope of medical science today. Listen to some of the quaint diagnoses of that time: "A bad eye," "rotten legs," "doubtless serious ulcers from scurvy." All mental diseases were diagnosed as "lunatic or madness," and "sunstroke" "drunk too much cold water." The most amusing of all was the serious case of a young man diagnosed as "Crossed in love."

The above diagnoses alone do not, of course, present a true picture of the practice of that day. Hospital development was at first very slow, and a hundred and twenty-seven years after the first hospital was founded in the colonies, or only 50 years ago, there were only 149 hospitals in the United States, with a bed capacity of 34,000. Today the number of hospitals in the United States is approximately 7,000—with a capacity of a million beds. Much of this phenomenal development has come during the past 15 to 20 years.

The money invested in these 7,000 hospitals is estimated at approximately five billions of dollars. Admittedly, many of the patients were during 1932 and many more millions were treated in the out-patient departments. The operating cost of this work was over eight hundred millions of dollars.

Hospital workers cannot properly meet the duties which lie before them without an understanding sympathy. Visit them on National Hospital Day and be part of the great army which is trying to radiate that spirit which actuated

With the name and date selected, National Hospital Day was launched and approximately 1,500 hospitals and 500,000 persons celebrated the day the first year, 1921. The movement has grown in popularity with hospitals and the public until this, the 13th year, a very large majority of the hospitals in the United States and Canada and millions of people will take some part in the celebration, and the hospitals in many foreign countries will celebrate the day.

National Hospital Day is not a donation day—a day on which funds will be solicited. It is purely an educational movement, a day

Airy Tulle And Organdie Swirl In Paris' Social Butterfly Mode

By RITA FERRIS
(Associated Press Fashion Editor)
PARIS—(AP)—Airy frivolous frocks for social butterflies appear in the mode launched by Chanel this spring and seen at some of the season's gay affairs.

Gowns of crisp tulle and sheer organdie with frilly shoulder lines and skirts which billow about the wearer's heels are displayed as debutantes' party frocks.

Black Tulle With Pink
One of the smartest gowns designed for spring dances is made of many yards of black tulle with a close fitting hipline, a full swirling lower skirt and shoulder pieces of fluted black tulle faced with the same net in shell pink.

Excellent Household Hints Today

Women readers of The Telegraph cut the following out. Paste in your cook book. You will find below many useful suggestions in the daily routine of house work.

When making apple jelly it is often dull and lifeless in color. Add one tablespoon of red sugar and you will have beautiful jelly. One fourth of a pound costs but a few cents.

To preserve cut or left over cheese put it in a tightly covered jar and keep in a cool place and it will keep fresh for some time.

Put several marbles in the kettle when making chili sauce, tomato preserves, apple butter, or anything which calls for stirring. The marbles will constantly across the bottom of the kettle, which prevents scorching or sticking.

Keep a piece of charcoal about two inches square in your ice box. If you would eliminate the flavor of melons, cucumbers, bananas, etc., mingling with other foods.

To sweeten a milk container, use 1-4 teaspoon baking soda, fill with warm water and let stand.

Sugar flavors ham. To give it a delicious flavor, add a handful of sugar to the water.

When canning peaches add a few peach stones. This greatly improves the taste of the fruit. After boiling remove the stones.

If you would have your chicken white, juicy and tender, rub it with a cut lemon, inside and out, before cooking.

A raw potato will remove the scorched taste from jelly or jam that has been slightly burned. First remove jelly to another pan, cut potatoes in quarters and continue cooking jelly.

When you can pickled pears or peaches why not use a few drops of coloring, red or green or yellow?

When cooking cabbage, cauliflower or onions, place a piece of bread, any kind, in the uncovered kettle, and the house will be free from odor. Use crusts if you like.

If your kettle lids have metal rings tie a cork in the ring and the lid can be lifted without burning your hand.

After squeezing juice from lemons, save the rinds for whitening your sink. Use soap or powder with it.

Before serving steak smothered in onions, squeeze the juice of a lemon over same. It will add greatly to the flavor.

If your wash boiler or cooking vessel starts to leak while on the stove put a handful of white corn meal there. The meal will not mix with clothes or food and the leak will stop immediately.

When you make baking powder biscuit add a quarter of a cup more liquid than usual, beat well and bake in muffin tins. Saves work.

A few cloves dropped in a kettle of fat gives a fine flavor to doughnuts. Try it.

When the bread will not rise and the yeast has lost its strength, add a little ginger. You will be surprised.

In making fruit pies that are very juicy, try beating an egg light and mixing in the sugar required by the fruit. Add a little flavoring mix thoroughly. Bake as usual.

OLD-AGE PENSIONS.

A total of 22 states have now adopted old-age pension laws. In these states indigent men and women who are too old to work will not have to go to the poorhouse and suffer the stigma of pauperization. Instead they will be able to draw regular incomes from their state treasuries, and while these incomes will not be large they will at least keep their recipients from starvation and will save their self-respect.

But that is not the whole story. According to reliable estimates, the 22 states involved will find this means of caring for the aged poor less expensive than the old system. The poorhouse is not only cruel and spirit-breaking; it is outlandishly expensive. And, incidentally, the pension laws will remove from the labor market those pathetic old job-hunters whose desperation causes them to agree to work for microscopically low wages.

All in all, the arguments for old age pension laws are pretty strong. The remaining 26 states in the union, to say nothing of the national Congress, would do well to listen to them.

HIGHBROWED ESKIMOS.

The term "highbrow" is a pretty well established part of American speech nowadays, and everybody understands exactly what it means; it is, consequently, a bit surprising to find Dr. Ales Hrdlicka, curator of anthropology at the Smithsonian Institution, reporting to the American Philosophical Society that the word is really all wrong.

The height of a man's brow, says Dr. Hrdlicka, is no gauge whatever of his mental powers. If it were, Eskimos would be the world's brainiest folk, as their brows average about 9 per cent higher than normal. A low, retreating brow can house a brilliant brain, and under the loftiest and most imposing of domes there can exist a complete mental vacuum.

Just what we ought to do about this isn't quite clear. "Highbrow" is too good a word to discard, even if it doesn't really mean anything. Probably we shall go right on using it—all of us, that is, except the highbrows.

A THIEF'S MISTAKE.

There is always something funny about the errors of a law-breaker; and in these days of weighty problems it is rather refreshing to read of the lamentable mistake made by a thief in Mineola, Long Island.

This chap was out to swipe some young cedar trees from a roadside nursery. He was to grab them, a friend was to drive up in his car, he was to jump in with the trees and they were to speed away.

It worked out—so the robber thought—just fine. He grabbed the trees and ran to the curb. A car slowed up, he flagged it, jumped in, dumped the trees in the back seat, barked "Step on it, Joe!"—and then discovered that he had, by mistake, climbed right into a police squad car. The gentleman is now in jail, meditating on his mistake.

THE FATALIST'S PHILOSOPHY.

Some gunmen tried to kill one Maxie Diamond, Cleveland gang leader, recently. Their bullets missed him; and Diamond, talking to reporters afterward, explained that he was a fatalist and hence was unworried.

"I know my time is coming sometime, and when it comes I'll go. So why worry?" he remarked.

But a reporter asked him why, if he were a fatalist, he ducked when he was shot at. And Diamond explained, "Well, it wasn't my time yet."

And this, it seems to us, is about the way most fatalists act. They believe that when it is time for them to go they will go, and that they can't avoid it; but just the same, when somebody shoots at them they duck. A fatalistic philosophy has to be pretty strong to check the old instinct of self-preservation.

There were many more failures and many more receiverships in proportion in 1873 and the period followed than now.—Washington E. Connor, partner of the late Gay Gould.

By laying off one wage-earner, assuming that that one horsepower can do the work of 10 men, we also laid off 49 robots, the invisible army of mechanical men under his control.—Paul P. Gorrlich, economist.

The danger is no longer that prosperity may be delayed, but that our economic system may go under.—Prof. Parker T. Moon of Columbia University.

If the wild oats theory were a sound principle of living, then we could also say that the way to make your arm strong is to break it.—Rev. Carlos G. Fuller of New York.

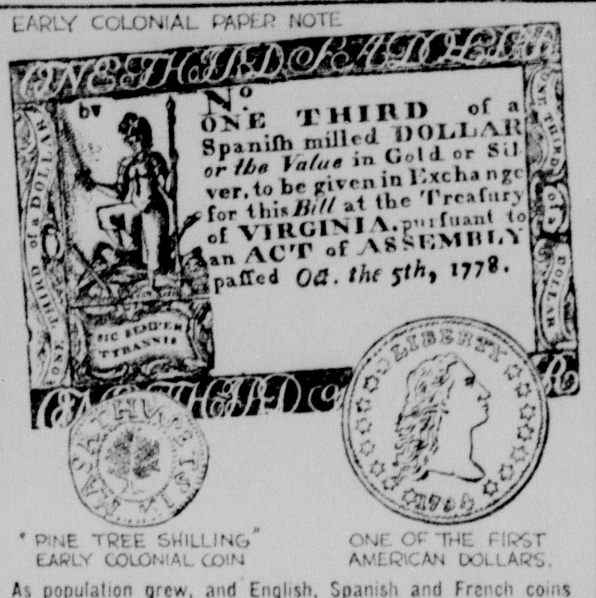

I do not think Great Britain owns Canada any more than Canada owns Great Britain.—C. H. Cahan, secretary of state for Canada.

Young and "modern" Japan are given over to everything American—jazz, fashions and all, while the common people like and admire anything American.—Sometaro Sheba, Japanese publisher.

MONEY—FROM THE STONE AGE TILL NOW

In earliest Colonial days, the Indians' wampum (strings of small shells) was commonly used by the Colonists themselves as money. Beaver skins, tobacco and rice passed current as money at various times and places.

As population grew, and English, Spanish and French coins were their only money, the Colonies began issuing their own. Much of it was "flat money," that is, paper of no value in itself, but to be used as money because the government said so. Values fluctuated, trade was difficult.

So disrupted was the Colonial paper money system that England forbade the Colonies to issue any more. This was one of the causes of friction that led to the Revolution. The Colonists identified "hard coin" with Toryism and England.

As there were then no sources of precious metal within the Colonies, the people leaned naturally toward paper money, which is just as good as any other kind, provided there is not too much of it. But the value of money tends to fall when there is an oversupply, despite laws to prevent this.

(NEXT: Inflation in the Revolution.)

Said Coppy, "Gee, what can we do? I do not like the woman who is chasing those two little girls. They're scared as they can be."

"We might rush out and start a fuss. The woman, though, might capture us. Perhaps we had better follow them, and see what we can see."

"A good idea," Scouty said. "Be careful as we move ahead. Just jump along from tree to tree, so we will not be seen."

"The woman's heading toward her house. If we're as quiet as a mouse, it is likely she won't hear us. Gee, I'll bet that she is mean."

They all took Scouty's good advice. Of course poor Duncy stumbled twice and made some little twigs crack, but the woman did not stop.

"For goodness sakes, be quiet, lad, or for us all it will be too bad," said Windy. "Every time you walk, you seem to take a flop."

"They have reached the house," said Duncy. "The little girls in the next story."

another cried. "The little girls have gone inside. I wonder what will happen now. Gee, how can we find out?"

"I know," said Coppy. "We will sneak up to a window. Then we will peek. I cannot rest until I know what this is all about."

They got down on their hands and knees and reached the little house with ease. "I will do the peeking," Scouty said. "The rest of you lay low."

"Don't let the woman see your face, unless you want to leave this place," said Duncy. "It will spoil the whole thing, if we have to go."

Then Scouty heard the woman say, "I am glad I found you girls today. You see, I am the work witch. I despise all sorts of play. You both are going to work for me and you'll be busy as can be. I'll find enough to keep you busy all the live-long day."

(Duncy suggests a way to help the little girls in the next story.)

merely to secure political advantage at the expense of a democratic President.

Therefore, politics virtually has been at a standstill since the beginning of the special session. With the next congressional elections more than a year away, the G. O. P. forces have remained largely under cover.

The proposal to inflate the currency, however, provided the republicans with an issue which they couldn't afford to ignore. Out they came equipped for battle.

For The Record's Sake There was not one of them, perhaps, who actually entertained hopes that the Thomas amendment, setting up the inflation machinery could be defeated. The leaders knew that not only would the democrats back the proposal, but also that votes would be had for inflation from their own ranks.

The fight had to be made, however. Everything that they had warned against in the years gone by was at stake. The record had to be kept straight at all costs.

The republican party had to be placed in the position where it could say to the country, "I told you so" if this attempt to bring the country back to its feet should fail.

Thus there appeared on the scene in Washington none other than Ogden L. Mills, secretary of the treasury in the Hoover administration. Mills was regarded as the leader in the anti-inflation drive.

He had as his chief aid Senator Reed of Pennsylvania, who carried the brunt of the fight on the senate floor. With these two in command, the big drive began.

Nothing was overlooked. For example, one read on the bulletin board of the press gallery of how Senator Reed, at the request of house leaders, attended the republican caucus on that side of the capitol and addressed the gathering on the subject of inflation.

On the floor of the senate one witnessed little significant episodes like this: Sen. Reed is thundering against inflation. Vandenberg of Michigan interrupts, walks over to him and proffers a hundred billion German mark not now worth 2 1-2 cents. Reed thanks him, and begs that he accept in payment a 10,000 Russian ruble note. The senate laughs.

But some ardent inflationists fail to see the humor in these little incidents. One, in the house, became so enraged at Mills' activity that he introduced a resolution to investigate "Lobbyist" Mills, as he termed him, and clear him out of the capitol.

A great era of synthetic foods, synthetic fuels, synthetic metals, synthetic woods and synthetic fibers is not far ahead of us. The whole mechanical era has hardly begun to develop as yet.

Sidelights In News In Capital Of United States

By HERBERT PLUMMER

Washington — In the opinion of many political observers in the capital the long-awaited republican offensive against the democratic program and policies has at last been launched.

There was not one of them, perhaps, who actually entertained hopes that the Thomas amendment, setting up the inflation machinery could be defeated. The leaders knew that not only would the democrats back the proposal, but also that votes would be had for inflation from their own ranks.

The fight had to be made, however. Everything that they had warned against in the years gone by was at stake. The record had to be kept straight at all costs.

The republican party had to be placed in the position where it could say to the country, "I told you so" if this attempt to bring the country back to its feet should fail.

Thus there appeared on the scene in Washington none other than Ogden L. Mills, secretary of the treasury in the Hoover administration. Mills was regarded as the leader in the anti-inflation drive.

He had as his chief aid Senator Reed of Pennsylvania, who carried the brunt of the fight on the senate floor. With these two in command, the big drive began.

Nothing was overlooked. For example, one read on the bulletin board of the press gallery of how Senator Reed, at the request of house leaders, attended the republican caucus on that side of the capitol and addressed the gathering on the subject of inflation.

On the floor of the senate one witnessed little significant episodes like this: Sen. Reed is thundering against inflation. Vandenberg of Michigan interrupts, walks over to him and proffers a hundred billion German mark not now worth 2 1-2 cents. Reed thanks him, and begs that he accept in payment a 10,000 Russian ruble note. The senate laughs.

But some ardent inflationists fail to see the humor in these little incidents. One, in the house, became so enraged at Mills' activity that he introduced a resolution to investigate "Lobbyist" Mills, as he termed him, and clear him out of the capitol.

Well, a new source of energy to replace the vanishing coal deposits must be found. Wireless transmission of cheap electric power is theoretically possible. A great era of synthetic foods, synthetic fuels, synthetic metals, synthetic woods and synthetic fibers is not far ahead of us. The whole mechanical era has hardly begun to develop as yet.

Science Brings these New Beauty Creams

The Skin is Cleansed in a New Way

Women have been quick to recognize the common sense of the Denton method of cleansing. The dirt is actually dissolved in the pores by the action of magnesium salts, instead of being rubbed off or out, as is the case with all soaps or ordinary cleansing creams. Such agents only loosen dirt, which must be actually removed by old fashioned washcloths or tissue. And besides, forcing heavy, greasy creams into the pores so often distends and enlarges instead of reducing them.

Denton's Magnesia Creams are light and greaseless; they penetrate the deep pores to search out dirt particles. And because the magnesium dissolves dirt immediately on contact, rubbing and massage are secondary. Thus the delicate skin structure is protected and enlarged pores are quickly reduced. So soothing and gentle is the action of magnesium that it is the first thing given to babies. As incorporated in the special Denton formula, it likewise

McREYNOLDS IS WINNER BY KO. IN FIRST ROUND

The Local Colored Flash Upset Davenport With One Punch

The large crowd attending last evening's benefit card, sponsored by Dixon Council, Knights of Columbus at the Ottawa avenue arena, were well repaid for their presence with one of the best programs that has been presented in many weeks. Matchmaker Ed Hooker was commended highly for his efforts in bringing together some of the fastest amateur talent in this section. The boxers were evenly matched and every bout was a contest from start to finish, some being more pronounced than others.

Elwood "Kid" McReynolds of this city furnished one of the big surprises of the evening by knocking out Ted Houston of Davenport in the first round of the main bout of the evening. Houston started out by driving two hard blows to Mac's body. The Dixon flash did not budge at the start, but bided his time and then sent over a hard right to Houston's chin after about one minute of the round had passed.

Johnny Blatzer of Davenport, international Golden Glove champ, met strong competition in Dominick Young of Rockford, who lasted for the three rounds when the judges awarded the decision to the Iowan.

Quin McCann of Davenport won a decision over Joe Romano of Rockford in another of the feature bouts of the evening.

Fred Myers of Davenport won a decision from Howard Ogan of Ohio in the 150 pound class. Eddie Carlson of this city, gave one of his flashy boxing exhibitions against Al Gustitus, a hard hitting Rockford puncher, the boys being well matched. Carlson appeared to suspect that he was facing a tough customer and the fight was a hard one from the opening of the first round until the finish, when Carlson was pronounced the winner by a wide margin. Carlson boxed one of the best fights in which he has participated in recent months.

John Doty of this city, who is employed at the Dixon state hospital and comes from the vicinity of Chadwick, made his first appearance before a local crowd, meeting Louis Viconi of Davenport in the 126 pound class. Doty, who has been through only a few fights and is a newcomer in the ring, gave an excellent account of himself and was awarded the decision over his husky opponent.

Chicago, May 5.—(AP)—It is "Glad Sam" instead of "Sad Sam" Jones these chilly baseball days.

REDS' PITCHER NEAR FAME WITH ONE-HIT BATTLE

Si Johnson Twirled Masterpiece Of Yesterday

By HUGH S. FULLERTON, JR.
Associated Press Sports Writer
A good many major league moundmen have seen the shadow of their perpetual goal—a no-hit no-run game—this season, but none has quite reached it.

Two more nearly made the grade yesterday when Si Johnson, sturdy, broad-shouldered right-hander of the Cincinnati Reds, missed a perfect game by the margin of one single in beating the Boston Braves 4-0 and Vernon Gomez, the New York Yankees' lean left-hander, gave up only two hits in a 5-2 victory over Detroit.

The game Gomez pitched was a real heart-breaker. For eight innings, he refused to let a single blow or to let a Tiger runner get past second base, even though he walked seven. Then Charley Gehrig, Detroit second baseman, met his first pitch in the ninth square on the nose and drove it into the right field bleachers for a home run. Gerald Walker then clouted a double and scored on an infield out after Gomez had uncorked a wild pitch that sent him to third.

Faced 27 Men
Johnson didn't suffer so rude a blow. Wally Berger nipped him for a single in the second inning and was promptly thrown out trying to steal second. From then on, Johnson gave neither a hit nor a walk, facing only 27 batsmen.

The victory boosted the Reds up a couple of notches in the scrambled National League standing, which found four clubs in a virtual tie behind the pace-setting Pittsburgh Pirates and New York Giants. The Reds went into a fifth place tie with the Brooklyn Dodgers, who took a 2-1 tie in the ninth defeat at Pittsburgh's hands.

The defeat was particularly painful for Watson Clark, Brooklyn southpaw. Leading 1-0 going into the eighth after facing only 22 batsmen, Clark was met by Floyd Vaughan's triple and Tony Piet's single that tied the score. In the tenth, Piet's blow and Hal Finney doubled him in.

Cubs "Blow" Game
A few points ahead of Cincinnati and Brooklyn the St. Louis Cardinals gained a tie for third with Boston by putting on a five run rally against John Berly in the fifth to defeat the Phillies 5-2. The Giants shattered a three-game losing streak by winning both games of a doubleheader from Chicago, 2-1 and 5-4, as big Fred Fitzsimmons pitched steadily in the opener and the Cubs "blew" the second game with four errors.

The Cleveland Indians and Chicago White Sox, running in tandem, moved up to second in the American League, passing the Washington Senators. Cleveland gave away four runs to Washington in the first inning, then came from behind to win out in the ninth, 6-5. The pale horse got two unearned runs off Merritt (Sugar) Cain in the first inning and proceeded to make them good for a 2-1 victory over the Philadelphia Athletics as Sad Sam Jones pitched five-hit ball.

Cold weather at St. Louis kept the Browns and the Boston Red Sox inactive.

Hooks and Slides

By WILLIAM BRAUCHER

THE OLD FIGHT—

After the track meet between Southern California and Stanford, in which the Stanford lads upset the apple cart by trailing the Trojan banner in the dust, Coach Dean Cronwell of the Trojans delivered himself of the following verbal digression:

"I guess some of the boys didn't care much which way the meet went, and I am sure I don't care if they didn't."

Come, come, coach, is that the old fight, now, I ask you? Here we have been laboring all these years under the delusion that the character-building experts at the colleges lashed their boys into a teeth-clenching frenzy—and that the enraged hammer-thrower went right out and slammed his lump of iron at the opponents' pole vaulters, etc. (for further particulars write to the Carnegie Foundation, or failing at that, try One-Eye Connolly.)

BASEBALL'S EXAMPLE—

Why, look at the way the major league professionals, those sordid souls who accept money for their services (not as much as they used to, however), are flinging fists at one another at the slightest provocation!

And, guessing from the fact that 26,000 turned out in a blizzard the day after the Washington-New York rumput, I am asking, does it pay? It was such a bad day that most of the fans wore snowshoes into the park, and fought madly for bleacher seats.

CARRYING ON!

And, now that I am on this subject, how about some of the old fight in other sports? Only the other day the sailboat editor was complaining that crowds weren't what they used to be. The answer: six-pound guns for the poop decks and blow the men down! What a crowd they could get with that one!

The same goes for other boat races—I don't mean the kind they have on the horse tracks, but the sort the college boys have in the water. The answer: let the oarsmen try to split one another's scow with the paddles. Why not? Yale and Harvard used to do that very thing, they tell me.

It would work out swell every place except in the prize ring. You can hardly expect these fine, upstanding character-built-in boys to be too antagonistic.

DID YOU KNOW—

Schoolboy Rowe, that sensational Detroit pitcher, is an acrobat's son. The reason Jimmy Fox will not break Babe Ruth's home-run record this year is the new 20-foot screen atop the left-field barrier in the Detroit ball park. Even the Washington baseball writers are sore at the New York writers. Col. Jacob Ruppert's brewmaster does not make as much as a puny $2,000 a year. Mickey Cochrane became very ill after eating fish—but Connie Mack, who sat across from Mickey and partook of the same questionable viand thrived on it. The Boston baseball writers have been razzing Bill Terry because Bill cannot be brought to believe that a manager should always be available for interviews.

Exports of U. S. aeronautics products, including complete planes separate engines, parts, accessories and parachutes, were valued at $7,946,533 in 1932. This was an increase of 65 per cent.

Production of airplanes in the United States during 1932 totaled 1936.

THOROUGHBREDS ALL READY FOR RACING CLASSIC

Ladysman Favorite Of Masses, Not Choice Of The Experts

BULLETIN
Louisville, Ky., May 5.—(AP)—Trace Call, Audley Farm colt whose Jockey, "Buddy" Hanford, was killed yesterday, developed a fever overnight which today prevented his being entered in the Kentucky Derby.

By ALAN GOULD
Associated Press Sports Editor

Louisville, Ky., May 5.—(AP)—The thoroughbred horseless that parades to the post at Churchill Downs tomorrow afternoon in the 58th running of the Kentucky Derby possesses real equine beauty and color, unusual racing courage and intersectional class—in fact all the essentials to the kind of "hoss race" that sends the pulse soaring, plus the paradox of a public favorite not expected by many observers to finish inside the money.

In recent years at least, there have been no more perplexing situations or more heated horse-racing arguments than those confronting thousands of turf followers, moving into the bluegrass today from all parts of the country. They came to join the "hard boots" in a brave attempt to chase the turf blues away, to sustain the glamour of America's most romantic horse race and get their share of thrills out of wagering $2 or maybe a little more on another tussle between east and west.

Odd Are Shifting

They arrived by train and motor by airplane and on foot, to find W. R. Coe's Ladysman, juvenile star of 1932 and winter book Derby favorite, clinging precariously to the position of "the horse to beat."

Odd odds that shifted today from 2 to 1 to 3 to 1. They discovered, too, that with startling disregard of this, few experts pick the eastern ace to finish better than fourth. Instead, the form-students indicate a preference for the winning chances of Mrs. William Crump's Head Play, a handsome chestnut colt, Tennessee-owned but backed by considerable Kentucky cash and sentiment.

Head Play, already 4 to 1 and going down, may go to the post a favorite, if it develops there is no further reason to be concerned over an injury to the colt's right hind leg, cut in a recent race. The sore spot has healed nicely, apparently to the complete satisfaction of trainers, and no trace of lameness has been shown in subsequent workouts.

Head Play Seen Often

Kentucky's sentimental support of Head Play may be due partly to the fact this handsome colt has been more on display at the Downs in contrast with the pampered care and secrecy surrounding Ladysman and his stable-mate, Pomponious, but it has not obscured the highly-regarded prospects of a number of others in the probable field of 13 three-year-olds.

Despite the withdrawal of such earlier favorites as repaid and Swivel, the Derby lineup looks the fastest and best-balanced brought together in several years, whether or not the winner jeopardizes the record of 2:01 4-5 made two years ago by Twenty Grand.

Especially well-backed, at around 6 to 1, is Charley O., an Hourcolt, winner of the Florida Derby and owned by Mrs. R. M. Eastman of Chicago. The silks of Col. Edward R. Bradley, master of the famous Idlehour farm and triple winner of the Derby, will be carried by Broker's Tip, 10 to 1.

The eastern contingent has Kerry Patch, 1932 Belmont Futurity winner, as well as Ladysman, but may have to place its main reliance in the stretch drive upon the Catawba Stable's Mr. Khayyam and Good Advice or on the speedy Sarada owned by F. A. Griffith of Rochester, N. Y., and sired by Sir Gallahad 3rd, the daddy of Gallant Fox.

BREACHES OPEN IN ANTI-TRUST LAWS OF NATION

Federal Officials Realize Restraint Is Hurting Business

Washington, May 5.—(AP)—The Roosevelt Administration is hammering significant breaches in the anti-trust legislation walls.

One, almost complete, would allow agriculture and related industries to pass through the barriers. Another has been started which would give the railroads an outlet and there may be one soon for general business and industry.

The government, however, intends to lay down definite conditions and to keep strict supervision over the events that take place in the long forbidden domain of "combinations in restraint of trade."

The Farm Bill, now near enactment, gives the Secretary of Agriculture wide power to exempt handlers of the basic commodities from the Sherman and Clayton anti-trust acts. The Railroad Bill, introduced yesterday, would give the Federal Coordinator similar power. President Roosevelt's address before the Chamber of Commerce of the United States indicated a measure may follow to clude other business.

No Recent Trust-Busting

There has been little major trust busting of late, the period, roughly speaking, extending from 1890—the year the Sherman Act was passed—to war time. Theodore Roosevelt was one of its most vigorous exponents and his attacks on trusts were front page news and material for many cartoons showing Teddy wielding the big stick.

In that stretch of years the government reinforced the Sherman Act with the Clayton law and set up the Federal Trade Commission to keep an eye on combines and threatened monopolies. The Federal authorities "busted" a good many trusts over the years, among them the Standard Oil Company of New Jersey, United States Steel, the packers and other giants.

Attitude Changed

But recently, especially in the depression years, complaints cropped up, business grumbling that the laws hampered efforts to give economical service. The idea took hold that there might be flaws in the doctrine of unregulated competition.

The changed attitude has been noted in more than one high seat of government lately. The Supreme Court recently held that the formation of a selling agency by a large group of coal producers was legal. The administration has shown that it believes the laws are standing in the way of the planned production it feels is necessary for permanent prosperity.

The holes that are being made, however, will not let business have an absolutely free hand but rather allow it to follow a path chartered by Roosevelt and his advisers.

Two Fight Cards For Derby Crowds

Louisville, Ky., May 5.—(AP)—Two fight programs in the Falls cities were carded for Derby Eve visitors tonight.

Maxie Rosenbloom, New York light heavyweight meets Charles Belanger, Winnipeg, in a ten-round non-title bout at Jeffersonville, Ind., across the Ohio river. In the semi-windup Eddie Speaks, Louisville, meets Johnny Mitchell, Detroit, in an eight-rounder. They are lightweights.

In Louisville, Dave Shade New York, and Henry Firpo, Louisville, middleweights, were carded in a ten-round headliner. Jackie Flabb, Louisville, meets Norman Brown, Indianapolis, in an eight-round semi-windup. The latter are middleweights also.

A wrestling show attended by many early Derby arrivals last night was headlined by a match in which Jack Reynolds National Wrestling Association welterweight champion, defeated Silent Rattan, who claims the welterweight championship of the west.

New York, May 5.—(AP)—Grim and tight-lipped, Rogers Hornsby, the old "Rajah" of the Cards, the Cubs, the Giants, the Braves and now the Cards again, is making a desperate effort to conquer the years in a comeback as an ordinary ball player, one of a team of nine.

The men of the Cardinals from Manager Gabby Street down to the bat boy, tell you the square-jawed 37-year-old Missourian will make it. All Hornsby asks for himself is the chance to play where he once managed a world champion team, and to be let alone.

"Something like eleven or twelve years ago, I began eating Kellogg's ALL-BRAN. When I started, it was called simply Kellogg's Bran, and I believe it was one of the first products of the kind on the market.

The Sublette Woman's Club met in the parlors of the Union church last Thursday. The ladies were entertained by the House Committee.

The meeting opened by singing "Swanee River" afterward the president offered prayer. Mrs. Emma Truckenbrod gave a report on the district meeting which she attended in Ashton April 26. The program was up on the subject, "Household Arts."

It was led by Mrs. Helen Long and Mrs. Mabel Oeschger, who carried it out in the form of a play. They opened the program by singing "Just a Street Where Old Friends Meet."

After many hints for the housewife, Mrs. Oeschger sang "Home, Sweet Home" accompanying herself with the guitar. Various poems on Home were read. Delicious refreshments were served by the hostesses.

The next meeting will be held at the home of Mrs. Mary Henrich. The program will be "Memories."

Mrs. Henry Billings, Jr., was taken very ill last Friday morning at her home. She was immediately taken to the Angier hospital, however she is much improved and was moved to the Henry Billings, Sr. home last Monday.

Mr. and Mrs. A. A. Lauer visited at the D. J. Fitzpatrick home in Amboy last Sunday afternoon.

Union Church Notes
Last Sunday marked the close of the fiscal year for the Union church. Rev. Oeschger's timely message on "The Spiritual Leakage of the Heart," proved to be appealing and inspiring to everyone present.

The community dinner was nothing elaborate but was tasty, wholesome and just right in every respect.

The delightful program of entertainment consisting of "An all-sing" recitations, quartets and a well rendered play entitled "The Southern Pedagogue," cheered us all and made us forget our troubles for the time being and for a long time to come.

The program was followed by the annual business session of the church. There seemed to be more interest and enthusiasm demonstrated at this meeting than usual.

This, we believe is a very healthy sign of a spiritual progressive church. The two trustees elected were: Miss Anna Erbs, re-elected; and Ervin Rapp although running a tight race with Chas. Hatch won out for the new member to refill the vacancy made by the passing away of Jacob Their last summer.

Rev. and Mrs. Oeschger were unanimously elected to serve us for another year. Let's make this coming year the best yet by being on time, every Sunday, if at all possible, to worship our common Lord and Master.

Next Friday night the Young People's League will meet at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Geo. Their. Let's all be there. Their's will show you a good time.

10:30 A. M. Morning Worship at which time the pastor will preach on the subject: "Harnessing Our Handicaps."

The ladies of the Methodist church met at the home of Mrs. Harold Wilson on Wednesday afternoon with Mrs. Wilson and Mrs. Berryman as the hostesses. After the business meeting the ladies enjoyed a few games planned by the hostesses and then the May Queen was crowned by the eldest daughter of Mrs. Wilson, and the queen, Mrs. E. Edwards was presented with some lovely flowers. The spring colors were carried out in decorations, napkins, waitresses' dresses and aprons, and the dessert also was decorated in yellow, pink and green. About thirty people were present and a good time was enjoyed by all persons there.

EDSON R. WAITE
Shawnee, Okla.

THAT cooperation means success for a city.

All cities should look to the future with courage.

They must have faith—faith in themselves, their neighbors and their city.

The future is before your city. What are YOU going to do about it? Will you wait for somebody to bring prosperity to you or go out with real cooperation and create your own prosperity?

With easy-going methods your city won't get far.

You have your future before you. The only way you can succeed is to work unselfishly and earnestly to put your city on the map as a city of commercial and industrial importance.

Activity and cooperation go hand in hand.

All should help to foster and develop a spirit of cooperation.

Rightfully directed cooperation is the only way to make a city grow.

Still Found In Mansion Once "Capital" Of Social Realm

Gurgling irreverently in the huge mirrored room where the late Mrs. Oliver H. Belmont once ruled New York society, one of the largest stills ever seized in the New York area was discovered by federal agents. The top photo shows the huge boiler of the 5,000-gallon still, the copper columns of which go through the ceilings into the late society leader's ornate bedroom. Below, exterior of the Belmont's former summer home where the still was found. Five men, bunking in the servants' quarters, were arrested.

KINGDOM NOTES

Mrs. L. Stevens

Kingdom—Mr. and Mrs. Dodson from Oregon spent Sunday at the Lowell Gunter home.

Mr. and Mrs. Lewis Gritton from Dixon were callers at the Fred Gates home one day last week.

Loore Mon spent the week end with Phyllis Gray.

Mr. and Mrs. Lewis Leydig from Dixon called at the Will Morris home last Friday evening.

Mrs. Geo. Gronewald and son

The many friends of Arthur Hoban regret to learn of his illness

will not have to be long.

Mrs. Clifford Floto from Franklin Grove and Miss Ora Floto were

Billie Bruhin from near Walnut spent Sunday at the L. Stevens and Will Morris homes.

At the Conference of the Evangelical churches held in Naperville recently our pastor, Rev. Heidenreich was transferred from this place to Fair Haven.

So at the services last Sunday evening, friends and members gathered to hear this beloved pastor preach his last service at our church. The usual worship service was held and a short program rendered.

The young people in appreciation of the service the pastor has done for them sang a song, "Living For Jesus."

A few well chosen remarks by the class leader, Mrs. George Floto telling how much better and stronger the church was when he left than when he came, Mrs.
Elmer Whitney sang a solo "Send Him Away With a Smile." She having written the words, which were very fitting and lovely. Mrs.
Henry Hintz gave us one of her readings, which are always enjoyed. A selection by the male quartet closed the program. Friends and members of the church and Sunday school presented Rev. Heidenreich with a small gift in appreciation of his fellowship and service.

We are sorry to lose our pastor because of the time limit, but we wish him success in his new field.

We were glad to have Mrs. Heidenreich and son and daughter in the gathering. They will always be welcome in our midst.

Rev. and Mrs. Heidenreich were guests at the home of their daughter and husband, Mr. and Mrs.
John W. Norris.

DARLING FOOL

BEGIN HERE TODAY

MONNIE O'DARE, 20 and beautiful, is unhappy because DAN CARDIGAN, who professes to be in love with her, is influenced by his snobbish family. CHARLES EUSTACE, handsome newcomer to Belvedere, pays Monnie marked attention. He helps her with family difficulties and when KAY, her younger sister, tries to run off with a traveling salesman, he and Monnie bring her back without scandal.

SANDRA LAWRENCE, one-time friend of Monnie's, tries to win Dan away from her. Sandra is trying to vamp JAMES,
the chauffeur, and is jealous.
NOW GO ON WITH THE STORY

CHAPTER XVI

MONNIE heard Kay's voice and looked up. It was Sunday morning—11 o'clock, to be exact—and Monnie was enjoying the sweet freedom of her "day off," celebrating it by the weekly washing of her burnished bronze hair. Sitting out under the apple tree in a shabby old basket chair, looking extraordinarily childish in the white smock she wore, she answered her younger sister.

"Yes? What is it?"
A new Kay, since the adventure.
A curiously silent, obedient, almost pathetically anxious-to-please Kay, Monnie reflected. It had been lucky—it had been really miraculous—that no one else had learned of Kay's brief fight with Chester Bigelow, from which Charles Eustace and Monnie had providentially rescued her.

"Monnie, I want to do something!" Kay's voice, her expression were tragic. Her sea blue eyes, long lashed, shadowed faintly with mauve, stared straight ahead.

"I've got to find something. I—I'll go crazy if I don't."

Monnie said mildly, "But there aren't any jobs for you in Belvedere."

"I know," Kay interrupted.
"That's exactly what I mean. If I could get away—to Chicago.
Or New York—"

Her voice fell on the name.
The magic name of The City.
Kay, staring through apple branches at the sky, was seeing, instead, the high minarets and towers publicized by the picture postcards—the famous "skyline."

She was seeing the Empire State building and the Chrysler tower,
the twinkling lights of Times Square.

"There'd be a chance for me
there," Kay stated eagerly. "I could make something of myself—be somebody. Get some place."

Monnie sighed. They had gone over this ground before. She sympathized, wholly and utterly,
but what could she do about it?

"You're too young to be on your own," she said with gentleness. "Even if we had the money to stake you for a while—which we haven't—you're far too young to go off that way by yourself.
Mother would never hear of it."

"Girls not one bit older than I am," said Kay with fervor.

"Well, let tell you," began Kay confidentially. "Mind you, Monnie, I wouldn't be talking this way if I weren't certain you'd got over Dan—and a mighty good thing that is, too," she interpolated. "Ever since that night you turned him down when he asked for a date I've been awfully glad. I was afraid," said Kay with sisterly candor,
"you might be turning out to be the sort of dumb bunny who cries with joy when a boy shows her any attention. And that, with your looks, would be dumb!"

"Thanks," Monnie was brush-ing her hair now. It did not matter if her face had crimsoned.
"What I say," cried Kay warning to her subject, "is, let Sandra

"are earning seeds of money in the movies."

"Oh, the movies, of course,"
said Monnie, dismissing them.

"Well?" Kay seemed to think she had made a case.

"Yes, but for the half dozen who are successful," argued the older sister, "aren't there hundreds who starve? Turn on the gas—all kinds of things. You read about it every day."

"I," said Kay magnificently,
"would be successful."

MONNIE gave her a speculative look. "You might," she said slowly. "And then again you might not. It's not being pretty and talented alone that puts you over. I read that the other day that a good camera man could make an actress and an unfriendly one ruin her chances.

There are tricks—why, some of the most successful ones are not a bit pretty if you meet them face to face! Don't you remember Lillian Martingale, the girl I told you I met at Sandra's last winter? She was plain, really, Angular—and her skin was awful. Yet Sandra said she got a screen test that was wonderful.
And she's getting along very well. I saw her picture outside the Cameo the other day when I came home."

"I forgot you'd met her

GOOD THOUGHTS

God bless still the generous thought
And still the fitting word he speaks,
And truth, at his requiring taught,
He quickens into deeds.

—Whittier

Let us understand our relationship to our heavenly Father, who has given us all, and begin to use His gifts. Let us recognize our birthright as something we need not fear to lose. We keep it by using it. Circulation is the constant activity of ideas, the never ceasing movement of Mind. The secret of continuous having is continuous giving.

—The Christian Science Monitor

And as you would that men should do to you, do ye also to them likewise. Give and it shall be given unto you; good measure, pressed down, and shaken together, and running over, shall men give into your bosom. For with the same measure that ye mete withal it shall be measured to you again.

—Luke 6

He that gives all, though but little, gives much; because God looks not to the quantity of the gift, but to the quality of the giver; he that desires to give more than he can hath equalled his gift to his desire and hath given more than he hath.

THE MELTING POT

By Dr. Joseph Fort Newton
An old Negro philosopher told me a parable which has often been in my mind, and it explains many things. In the beginning, he said, after God had made everything else he decided to make man. A pot was placed and each of the animals was asked to contribute a share toward the making of man, and they did as they were commanded.
One after another they passed by the pot and put in their share. The lion, the fox, the dog, the pig, the donkey, the bear, likewise birds and fishes, all put something into the pot. After everyone had put in his gift, God took a piece of godliness and put it into the pot, contributing His share to the making of man kinsman of all creatures.
Then they started to melt and mix the stuff to create man. At the end of the sixth day, that is toward sunset, God took a rest. It seems that the stuff did not mix very well in the pot, and so men are not all alike. Some are as strong as lions, others as proud as peacocks; some soar like eagles and others are as blind as bats.
Alas, some are sly and foxy, some are piggish, and some are as stubborn as the donkey, if not as dumb. And there are a few, unfortunately, who make you feel the wriggle of a snake's tail when you shake hands with them. It does explain a number of riddles—why all of us exhibit, at times, the traits now of the monkey and now of the ass.
Yes, man has a lot of the animal in his make-up, and he does some things which no self-respecting beast would do. But that is not the whole story about him. God also had a share in his making, putting something of Himself—a spark, an urge, a dream—into the melting pot, which mixed somehow, in some degree, with all the strange stuff of man.
It is this Divine part of prophecy, no matter how deeply hidden or dimly seen, that lends dignity and hope to our race. In some men—poets, seers, saints—it shines like a star to light the way. Let us not lose faith because of the littleness and meanness of man, but trust that the Divine in him, sooner or later, will make him what God meant him to be.

FOOD AND DISEASE

Heredit and environment, the major factors in well-being cannot be considered as completely separate.

The forces of heredity operate within the environment. They are also influenced by environment, so that a set of favorable conditions will offer a wide and free field for the full development of hereditary factors, while adverse conditions will hinder them.

One of the most intimate and powerful of all environmental influences is food.

When properly fed and nourished, the body has extraordinary powers of resistance to disease. This is demonstrated by the incidence of tuberculosis in a given community. When the food supply is liberal, tuberculosis tends to decline in prevalence. When there is a want of essential foods, as was seen during the World War, tuberculosis spreads.

We know specifically how the

A California railroad runs across the tops of trees over a deep ravine near the coast. A bridge of stone or iron was too costly to build, so the trees were utilized. The top branches were sawed off and the timbers for the line were laid on the stumps. The bridge is quite safe.

Turkish tobacco is to Cigarettes what Seasoning is to Food

Early in the 17th century, tobacco seed from America was taken to Turkey. Different soil, different climate, different temperatures night and day, and different farming methods produced an entirely new tobacco—small in size, but very rich and aromatic.

This tobacco is known generally as Turkish tobacco; but there are as many varieties of Turkish as there are kinds of apples.

Four certain spots are famous for the quality of their Turkish tobacco—Xanthi and Cavalla in Greece; Samsoun and Smyrna in Turkey. And it is principally from these places that our buyers get the Turkish for Chesterfield. These Turkish tobaccos are blended, in just the right amount, with Domestic tobaccos. It is this blending and cross-blending of just the right amount of Turkish and Domestic tobaccos which gives Chesterfield a flavor that neither possesses alone.
